

Where to go in July - AOL Travel UK (June 2015)

Sicily

July is the perfect time to visit Sicily, with temperatures reaching highs of around 30C and a host of festivities which bring the rich history and culture of the island to life. The island has an abundance of food festivals throughout the summer including Stragusto, which takes place in Trapani and celebrates the delicious Sicilian, Tunisian and Italian street food famous in the area. Legume lovers will enjoy the Festa del Raccolto in Cianciana which celebrates the town's local harvest of chickpeas and fava beans. Those in Palermo can enjoy the city's festival dedicated to its Patron Saint at La Festa di Santa Rosalia, which includes lots of drinking, feasting and celebrating. Relax in luxury at Scent of Sicily's Vila Seabreeze, a modern Sicilian vila with direct access to a private beach that sleeps up to eight people.
